REASON'S PROBLEMS

A CURE FOR THE PROBLEM would probably drop but industrial spending would.

6. Shipping offices are piling ahead with their shipments and, better though, baggage cars to transport material, overseas etc. would not be cleared anything that would get their material to the port first.

7. Short studies instead of accidental disasters were urged by the two rising producers, pointing out we would not be the people's scapegoat.

8. Good laws were given as laws. Many from the following.

9. That 2 out of the people who were to be entertained more than in.

10. Forwards shows are expected to go on as usual, as a special type of powder not required for defense.

is used in making pyro displays.

9. Fair should not empty against current by reduced commercial activities with government and service activities and the like.

10. Fair should not ask anything from Washington.

11. Fair was urged to encourage local exhibits that can be produced with simplicity.

12. Fair has a tremendous responsibility and can produce, possibly service during the battle for freedom.

13. One official expressed himself as being far the serious task and for the government's handling of the war strategy right or wrong.

14. Good friends said they were going all out for more elaborate entertainments and projects with greater appeal than ever before.

15. The chairman was asked, "we discussed on page 111."

The THRILL of THRILLS!

Eyes turn upward to the clouds when Seldon, The Stratosphere Man, goes through his unbelievable routine of gymnastics, balancing, trapeze, perch, and unduplicated 35-ft. swaying handstand on a 138-ft. pole. The hushed silence is broken by a deafening applause only after his 500-ft. slide for life! It's dramatic, exciting and sensational beyond words.

Spectators know they are witnessing the most daring and unusual sight ever presented and those who have booked the act agree—wholeheartedly.
